To whom it may concern

I commissioned Simon Jones to create a new website for my new business, RSVP, and was very pleased with the professional attitude and attention to detail. Although my brief was exactly that, brief, Simon was able to understand my needs and created several web designs for me to choose from. He added features that I had not considered and created a final design I was very pleased with.

Simon hosted the web site and converted my images/videos to suit the site restrictions, creating download options for viewers to enable them to view the site efficiently no matter what imaging software they used.

I would certainly recommend Simon and will use him again
